A TEACHERS CONFERENCE.

Manning Hall Filled With an Interested Throng of Teachers.

Notwithstanding the gloomy weather of Friday last, a large contingent of New England educators were in attendance at the meeting in Manning Hall for the discussion of that live, all important problem, "The Education of our Nation's Women." Besides the many representatives of our own state there were many others present, including representatives of the Berkeley School, New Haven High School and West End Institute, Classical School of Hartford, North Yarmouth Academy of Maine, Dean Academy of Franklin, Upton High School, South Braintree Academy, New Bedford Friends' Academy, Superintendent of North Easton and Attleboro Schools, Principals of Wheaton and Pittsfield Seminary, and a score of others.

The conference was opened with brief devotional exercises, and with President Andrews as President who opened the discussion of the day by giving a brief sketch of University Extension as such, and by outlining Brown's policy as relating to the Education of Women. The President spoke in substance as follows:

"It was in December, '91, that some dozen young women availed themselves of their permission to take the Freshman examinations, all of which they passed with great credit. About this time, the Parliament of Great Britain had passed an act authorizing its women to avail themselves of all the facilities hitherto granted to its male students alone, and many Scotch universities welcomed young women to its doors. Here, two colleges, Yale and the University of Pennsylvania, gave women all the facilities of their graduate department. Encouraged to further movement of its own, at Brown, in '92, were passed two remarkable votes by its corporation.

First, that if any woman prepared for enough examinations to put her on a level with man, she should receive the Bachelors' degree; second, all women holding a Bachelors' degree should have equal privileges at Brown with graduate students. Therefore, in Brown to-day, young women are practically offered the privileges of men so far as the undergraduates are concerned, though in official action young women must make their own arrangements and preparation. As it was manifestly but a half concession of woman's needs to offer facilities without providing for their preparation, arrangements to instruct undergraduates were made, and the name "Women's College" was given, and while still unofficially recognized, examinations are offered on equal terms and all degrees are alike open to them.

Now was the time for the young women of Providence to show their appreciation of this long-coveted opportunity and the occasion was improved. Their numbers multiplied rapidly the second year and still more in the last one, with most gratifying results alike to pupils and instructors. Yet equality in our University unfortunately means as yet only so far as instruction is concerned. No dormitories for quiet and comfort, no gymnasium for physical improvement is yet provided for our young women, but we hope and mean that they shall soon be provided. We are awake to their urgent importance, and last June the corporation voted land for a women's college, awaiting the generosity of some donor for a suitable building. At the same time the corporation authorized an appeal to be made for funds for this purpose. The movement, though new, is growing marvelously."

After concluding his speech, President Andrews introduced Miss Sarah E. Doyle of Providence, as being the one woman who had done more than any other in our state toward making collegiate education for women a possibility among us. Miss Doyle's paper was entitled "The Need and Propriety of Collegiate Education for Women."

This admirable paper, which space will not allow to be given in full emphasized three points: The necessity for better trained mothers, better trained teachers, and better trained women for humanity's cause. Among many foreign nations and in earlier ages, said the speaker, women had numberless obstacles to surmount compared with the present opportunity. In the Orient she was a slave, in Greece a child, in Rome a tributary, and by the Hebrews contemptuously called an afterthought of the Almighty. In feudal days woman's influence was regarded as almost wholly evil, and even in the present day many brilliant and earnest women obtained their education by secrecy and stealth, so opposed was public opinion. Woman's best friend seems to be the one who, if he have not the power to advance her welfare, will not keep her back. Pointed with apt quotation and forcible illustration, Miss Doyle's address was listened to with deep interest.

For the next half hour an informal discussion took place, Rev. Mr. Moulton of Andover, Mr. Taylor of the Berkeley School, Rev. Mr. Ferguson and Miss Marvel of the Normal School being the principle speakers. The forenoon session closed with an invitation by President Andrews to all present to inspect the college buildings.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The opening article of the afternoon session was presented by Professor Winslow Upton, the subject being: "The Use and Abuse of the Certificate System." It was an interesting and logical presentation of a modern problem confronting the American College, and brought forth much friendly and interesting discussion. Mr. Peck of the Providence High School and Mr. Taylor of the Berkeley School spoke at some length in support of the system, and presented arguments for its permanent adoption.

Miss Le Garde of Providence, then read a wholesome, refreshing paper on "The Physical Training for Women," illustrating the necessity for such training by photographic reproductions of the much talked of statues made by Dr. Sargent, representing the typical American young man and young woman of to-day.

The session was closed by Professor Samuel Thurber of Boston, who presented a paper entitled: "English Literature in the Higher Education of Women." It was a masterpiece, scholarly, thoughtful and eloquent, justifying the hearty applause it received.

Extension Work in Connecticut.

The Stonington, (Conn.) correspondent of the Westerly Daily Tribune says: This is the second year of the Stonington "Centre," of the University Extension. Last year lectures on astronomy were given by Professor Upton, of Brown. This year lectures on "Practical Electricity," are being given by Arthur E. Watson of Lynn, Mass. Mr. Watson graduated at Brown in 1888. Much credit is due Mr. Eugene Atwood for donating the use of a room in his factory, where electrical power is available, special electrical connection being made for use of the lecturer.

University Extension originated at Oxford University, England, about fifteen years ago, where it was thought desirable to give the outside public the benefit of university teaching as far as possible. Classes were organized for lectures by members of the University faculty, and so popular did the plan become that "centres" were soon organized all over England.

Two or three years ago the American Society for the extension of University Teaching was organized at Philadelphia, and was soon assisted in its work by a large number of American colleges. Brown University was the first New England college to engage actively in the plan, and during the last two years it has organized various centres in Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut, at Fall River, Taunton, New Bedford, Brockton, Bristol, East Greenwich Pawtucket, Providence, Newport, Stonington and other places.

A Connecticut society has established similar "centres" in this state, under the direction of Yale and Wesleyan Universities and Trinity College.

The President of the Stonington centre is Professor W. Carey Edgcombe, of Mystic, and the secretary is Miss Louise Trumbull of Stonington.

Foot Ball Notice.

It will be a great accommodation if all those who have not yet paid their subscriptions to the Foot Ball Association will do so at once. The money is needed and the management desires to get all the subscriptions in before the coming annual meeting.

F. D. ALDRICH,
Treasurer.

The member of class of '92 who lost a class pin in July last can obtain it at the Journal office.

FOUND.—On the middle campus, a red leather pocketbook and Yale key. Call at HERALD office.

"IBSEN" is the subject of the lecture to be given in Sayles Hall this evening.
Mr. Richard Burton of the Hartford Courant is the lecturer, and will speak of Ibsen as a romantic dramatist.

Foot ball subscriptions are wanted at once by the management. The money is needed, and the sooner it is paid, the more quickly can the foot ball accounts for the past season be settled. Let it not be thought that because the team is through playing, no more money is needed. That is far from being the case.
The amount pledged at the recent meeting is all necessary, and those who promised it will do just what they ought to do by meeting their obligations as soon as possible now. The request of the treasurer of the Foot Ball Association is worthy of particular notice.

BIOLOGICAL study at Brown has, of late years, taken a strong step forward. The department of biology has been greatly broadened, so that now very fine facilities are offered to the large and increasing number of students who wish to make a specialty in this direction. The larger amount of instruction now to be had, and the better accommodations now enjoyed, make the biological work at Brown most efficient. To students who propose to take a course in a medical school these advantages are especially valuable, and in giving them the university is making possible work which is much demanded in colleges to-day. The biological department at Brown has now come to hold an important relation to similar departments elsewhere by the establishment here of a supply department, where large numbers of different animals are collected for subsequent demands. The nearness of Woods Holl gives this department a very opportune situation, and its importance is shown by the large number of orders that have already come in. This department in competent hands is of much importance to the biological work here and elsewhere, and by the transactions that it will carry on with other institutions there will no doubt be a mutual increase of interest and efficiency in the important work of biological research.

The Century for December is embellished with a Christmas cover, and abounds in holiday features. In keeping with the religious spirit of the season are two engravings by Cole of Rembrandt's "Supper at Emmaus,"—one of the entire picture, and the other of the figure of Christ alone. A Christmas sermon by Phillips Brooks, not before published, is given entire. An engraving of "The Advent Angel," by Ella Condie Lamb, forms one of the Century's American Artists series. A poem by Alice Archer Sewall, entitled "While Mary Slept," is illustrated with two full-page drawings by Frank Vincent Du Mond.
"Christmas at the Children's Hospital," after a drawing by J. Carrell Lucas, represents the prize picture in a competition instituted by the Century for the Baltimore Charcoal Club. "The Baby's Christmas," a story by Joel Chandler Harris, and such subjects as "Christmas and Modern Ritualism," "A Christmas Thought," and "American Militarism," a plea for peace and arbitration, by Edward Berwick, emphasize this aspect of the number, which concludes with a "Holly Song" by Clinton Scollard, decorated by Harry Fenn. A notable contribution to this number is the first part of Mark Twain's new dramatic novel, "Pudd'nhead Wilson," which is to run in the Century for six or seven months.

"Fantasma."

This great spectacle will be presented by a company of rare excellence and with all the novel and ingenious mechanical effects and surprises that have made it one of the most popular dramatic attractions of recent years. Ever since its first production "Fantasma" has been a phenomenal favorite with the playgoing public, and at its former presentations in this city it attracted crowded houses.
It will be presented under the management of the Hanlon Brothers. The performers in the cast have been specially selected for their respective roles.
Providence Opera House, December 4, 5 and 6, with matinee Wednesday at 2.

Indigestion

Horsford's Acid Phosphate

Is the most effective and agreeable remedy in existence for preventing indigestion, and relieving those diseases arising from a disordered stomach.

Dr. W. W. Gardner, Springfield, Mass., says: "I value it as an excellent preventive of indigestion, and a pleasant acidulated drink when properly diluted with water and sweetened."

The Atlantic for 1894

Will contain, among other attractions

Philip and His Wife, a serial story, by Margaret Deland.

This is undoubtedly the most important work of the author of "John Ward, Preacher," involving some of the leading problems in modern social life, studied very thoroughly, and treated with admirable skill and grace.

Short Stories,

Misses Jewett, Mrs. Catherwood, Joel Chandler Harris, Mrs. Wiggin and others.

History and Biography,

Will be very effectively represented by papers from Capt. Mahan, Professor McMaster, the historian, Hon. J. C. Bancroft Davis, Professor Mendenhall and others.

Literary History and Criticism

Will be made attractive by letters of Coleridge and Thoreau, and by papers on engaging themes from Sir Edward Strachey, Professor Kittredge of Harvard, Professor Tyrrell of Dublin, and other very competent writers.

Nature.

Delightful sketches on the seasons and the aspects of Nature in Florida, Utah and Canada, are promised by Miss Thomas, Bradford Torrey, Frank Bolles and Olive Thorne Miller, Educational Topics

Will be treated with the care and thought due to their importance. This is regarded as one of the most useful parts of the work of the Atlantic. Articles are assured from Professor Shaler, Horace E. Scudder and others who are able to speak with authority.

Music and the Drama.

Special attention will be given to dramatic criticism and to the development of the theatre in America, with reminiscences of famous actors and actresses.

TERMS: $4.00 a year in advance, postage free; 35 cents a number. With new life-size portrait of Whittier, Lowell, Hawthorne, Emerson, Longfellow, Bryant or Holmes, $5.00; each additional portrait, $1.00.
